Class of 2003...

As we began our medical school career this summer, we could not imagine the experiences we would face as first year medical students. We have survived the hours of studying and the smell of gross lab, and in the process made friendships to last a lifetime. While the first year of medical school flew by, we look forward to what lies ahead during our next three years at MCP Hahnemann School of Medicine.

A New Name for our Yearbook

After the merger of the MCP and Hahnemann University medical schools, the yearbook editors realized that their publication needed a name that was unique to the combined program. The student body was polled for ideas, and subsequently voted on the new name. "The Iatريان" and "The Medic" were retired, and "The Aesculapian" is now in its second year of publication.

Included here is the story of Aesculapius, from whom the yearbook takes its name.

Aesculapius (Roman), also known as Asklepios (Greek) or Asclepius, is the Greek god of healing and patron deity of physicians. He was the son of Apollo and the mortal maiden Coronis. While Coronis was with child, Apollo learned from a white raven that Coronis was in love with another. In his anger, Apollo turned the raven black, and punished Coronis by placing her on a funeral pyre. When Apollo realized his guilt at also killing his unborn child, he stole the child from his mother's womb and entrusted the centaur Chiron to raise Aesculapius and teach him the art of healing.

Aesculapius' abilities surpassed those of Chiron, to include the ability to bring the dead back to life. He delivered many from torment and death's door, and is noted to have brought Theseus' sons back from the dead.

When Zeus learned of these abilities, he became fearful that Aesculapius was far too powerful a mortal, that he may, in fact, make men immortal. Zeus slew Aesculapius with a thunderbolt, but Aesculapius continued to heal anyone who sought his help.

According to Greek legend, those patients seeking to be healed would sleep the night in the temple of Aesculapius. The healer would appear to them in a dream, accompanied by his daughter Hygieia and by his serpent. In the dream he would treat the patient, and in the morning the patient awoke, healed.

The Staff of Aesculapius became the symbol of the physician. The Caduceus is NOT the true symbol of medicine, although it has been erroneously regarded as such in modern times. The confusion arose during World War I, when all medical ambulances bore a Caduceus on their sides to signify that they were traveling under a flag of truce and were not to be attacked. After the war, the symbol came to be associated with medicine. Unlike the Caduceus (the winged staff of Hermes) which bears two serpents intertwined, the Staff of Aesculapius bears a single serpent entwined on the wooden staff, representing the serpent that both traveled with him wherever he went and participated in his healing of the ill.

MEDICAL COLLEGE OF PENNSYLVANIA

1850: The Female Medical College of Pennsylvania, the first school in the world to offer the M.D. to women, was founded in Philadelphia by a small group of liberal-minded physicians. In October, classes began in a few rented rooms at the rear of 229 (later 627) Arch Street.

Ann Preston, M.D.

1865: Ann Preston, a graduate of the first class and Professor of Physiology and Hygiene, was named Dean of the Female Medical College of Pennsylvania. She was the first female dean of any medical college in the United States.

1867: The Female Medical College of Pennsylvania was renamed the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania in accordance with a popular notion that "female" was an undignified expression.

First building, Female Medical College of Pennsylvania at 229 (later 627) Arch Street, 1850-61.

1938: Catherine Macfarlane, Professor of Gynecology, initiated a prospective study aimed at determining whether yearly exams of asymptomatic women could detect early cervical cancer. The project was published in JAMA and The American Journal of Obstetrics and Gynecology and won considerable acclaim for Macfarlane and the Woman's Medical College.

If I've had a new idea or made a new friend...
If I've discovered something interesting about the world or about myself...
If I've gone a little farther than I had to or given a little more than was expected...
If I've accomplished something worthwhile, however small...
If I've brought happiness to someone who wouldn't have found it without me...
Then I've lived well today.

When I started this journey, I wasn't sure where it would take me. I learned that there are other uses for an ophthalmoscope than using it to play with my cats and that I could develop a five page concept map in 2 hours. Jennifer's pregnancy and Alexandra's subsequent birth helped draw me to the field of Obstetrics and Gynecology. Getting to wear scrubs all the time didn't hurt my decision either! As I continue this sojourn into the field of Obstetrics and Gynecology, I thank God for the wonderful wife and beautiful daughter with whom He has blessed me. Thank you for your love and support. Ten years ago it seemed impossible
That she should ever grow so calm as this,
With self-remembrance in her warmest kiss,
And dim dried eyes like an exhausted well.
Slow-speaking when she had some fact to tell,
Silent with long unbroken silences,
Centered in self yet not unpleased to please,
Gravely monotonous like a passing bell.
Mindful of drudging daily common things,
Patient at pastime, patient at her work,
Wearied perhaps but strenuous certainly.
Sometimes I fancy we may one day see
Her head shoot forth seven stars from where they lurk
And her eyes lightnings and her shoulders wings.

I am very pleased and proud to be graduating from our medical school. I think it is profoundly unique and I hope everyone appreciates that to some extent.

I am grateful for the friends I have made and the people I have come to know both here at school and in Philadelphia as a whole. I hope that many of them will be friends for life.

Still, the most important people to me are my family. My Dad (Al) and Mom (Wilna), although divorced, are still close and we are all still a family. Their love and support are immeasurable.

Despite the distance, my sisters, Lisa - an attorney in New Orleans, and Michele - a psychiatry resident at the University of Washington in Seattle, are still two of my closest "friends" and allies.

And now the next generation is here: Rachel, Michael and Sophia. While I have worked with hundreds of kids in my life, these are the most important. I love being "Uncle Tony".

Finally, for the last four years I have enjoyed and benefitted from working with the children of Philadelphia, chiefly the North section, through Big Brothers/Big Sisters, The West Kensington Boys and Girls Club, and The Children's Project. I wish them all well as I move on to help and treat the children of "The Big Apple".

Good luck everyone.

How did I ever get here?! It's more than a little weird to think of signing M.D. after my name. I never had a plan, no idea about how to pull it off. And despite the obstacles I put in the way, things just fell into place. I thank Spirit for that.

I certainly didn't get here alone, no matter how much I once wanted to believe it. I have the support of my family, a community that believes in me, colleagues who inspire me, and mentors that give me second chances. Thanks to everyone who has made me laugh, who has helped me cry, and those who nourished my growth. It hasn't always been easy, but it's been fun!

So much was shared, revealed and learned during our first two years of med school. I'll never forget the lessons that were learned and I'll cherish the time we spent together, Love always.

Have you not known? Have you not heard; that the everlasting God, the Lord, the creator of the ends of the earth faints not, neither is weary? There is no searching of his understanding. He gives power to the faint and to them that have no might he increases strength. Even the youths shall faint and be weary; and the young men shall utterly fall. But they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run and not be weary, they shall walk and not faint.

Dear Mom and Dad--
I thank God every day for blessing me with parents who are loving and supportive. If it had not been for your prayers, I know that I would not have made it through. Daddy, in a few years we can actually start talking about your RV. Mommy, thank you for giving me The Checklist when I really needed it. Thank you for everything.

Dear Grandma--
I love you, and quit being so stubborn and listen to your doctor. Thank you for my monthly love token.

Dear Billy, Sanci, Julius and Denise--
You've been supporting me throughout this adventure (emotionally, FINANCIALLY, etc...). It's rare today to see siblings who actually love one another, but I can honestly say that I love you all with all of my heart.

Dear Damille, Simone, Elan and Celine--
Aunelle is so proud of you. I've missed you for four years but now I'm coming home. And yes Elan, now we can go to Castle Park.

To my Girls - Deni, Angela and Donna--
Thanksgiving in Cali! We've laughed and cried a lot over the past few years, but, in the words of the omnipotent Donnie Simpson, aim for the moon (or the sky, or something up there I can't remember) 'cause if you miss you'll still be amongst the stars. That is too deep for most, but I think that you can understand. Love ya.

Dear Grandpa and Auntie Edna--
I miss you so much, but I can feel your love smiling down on me everyday. Love, Dangerous.

To my Family, Friends and Second Baptist Church--
Thank you for the daily prayers. I love you.

"What is Success"

To laugh often and much;
To win the respect of intelligent people and the affection of children;
To earn the appreciation of honest critics
and endure the betrayal of false friends;
To appreciate beauty;
To find the best in others;
To leave the world a bit better, whether by a healthy child, a garden patch or a redeemed social condition;
To know even one life has breathed easier because you have lived;
This is to have succeeded.

-Ralph Waldo Emerson

If you can keep your head when all about you
Are losing theirs and blaming it on you;
If you can trust yourself when all men doubt you,
But make allowance for their doubting too;

If you can dream - and not make dreams your master;
If you can think - and not make thoughts your aim;
If you can meet with triumph and disaster
And treat those two imposters just the same;

If you can talk with crowds and keep your virtue,
Or walk with kings - nor lose the common touch;
If neither foes nor loving friends can hurt you;
If all men count with you, but none too much;

If you can fill the unforgiving minute
With sixty seconds' worth of distance run -
Yours is the Earth and everything that's in it,
And - which is more - you'll be a Man my son!

The poem springs from the half-spoken words of such patients as the physician sees from day to day. He observes it in the peculiar, actual conformations in which its life is hid. Humbly he presents himself before it and by long practice he strives as best he can to interpret the manner of its speech. In that the secret lies. This, in the end, comes perhaps to be the occupation of the physician after a lifetime of careful listening.

And above all these things put on charity, which is the bond of perfectness. And let the peace of God rule in your hearts, to the which also ye are called in one body; and be ye thankful. Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom; teaching and admonishing one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, sing with grace in your hearts to the Lord. And whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to the Father by him.

To my parents and family who have been an unending source of love, support and encouragement;
To my friends who have been an unending source of laughter, long talks and good times;
To my mentors and patients who have been an unending source of knowledge and life lessons;
Thank you to all who have contributed to this amazing journey towards the privilege of becoming a doctor.

Good luck to the Class of 2000!

Your Duty To-morrow

WITH GOD'S GRACE-

Look back and help for humanity's sake.
Measure your charity by the acts of others toward you
While you were climbing.

Forget not the past with all its good and ill reports.
Contemplate your future by the experiences
you have had,
If you must strike to live, strike hard and sure.

SATISFACTION

There's no skill in easy sailing
When the skies are clear and blue
There's no joy in merely doing
Things that anyone can do

But there is great satisfaction
That is mighty sweet to take
When you reach a destination
That you thought you couldn't make.

Since I didn't have any more pictures to fit this space, I decided to use it to say thanks to the many people in my life who have helped turn me into the person I am and helped me get to where I am - graduating from medical school. I apologize in advance if this is gonna be sappy. First of all, to my parents, Dad and Mom, aka Gush - even though I might not always tell you, it is really because of you guys that I got here - your love, support, selflessness and kicks in the ass throughout the years have meant more to me than anything, and you've set wonderful examples with your lives of the kind of person I want to be - thank you for that, I love you; second of all, to my sisters, Shannon and Meanus - I sure am glad Dad and Gush decided not to stop with me - you guys are two of my best friends, and through all the water fights, stitches, soccer games, and dinner conversations, I can safely say that I couldn't imagine life without you - love you, and thanks; third of all, to Nan, Pop, Gramma, and Grandpa - I wish every kid could grow up with grandparents like you - you've taught me more than I could imagine, you're wonderful, and I love you; finally, to all my friends in high school, college, and medical school, my pets, and anybody else I don't have room to mention by name - thanks for the good times, the laughs, and the memories - you've helped turn me into a doctor.

Chances

Chances are:

We only get one shot in life.
If you get two, or three, or even four -
Best believe, you need to do it right.

Chances are:

Chances.
We don't get to request a brother or sis
It just so happens that there's an even split -
Yes, of Stephens,
I have no grievances,
How many can boast a big brother?
It made little sense to me.

He got in trouble, I got in trouble,
He made mom and dad proud, I made mom and dad proud.
We met our goals,
There's truth in "you reap what you sow".
And now I know.

Life without Don would not be life at all,
No high fives,
No back dives,
No fun and games,
No model trains,
No "knee football,"
No treehouse lock-outs,
No blow-up boxing gloves for "box-out,"
No belief in a brave big bro,
Man, oh man, little did I know.

I guess what I'm trying to say -
Is that I've learned the error of his ways - through mine,
I've also learned how to become a responsible man.
Your love, your strength, your guidance, your wisdom.
Come easy? Never!
Yet you endeavor -
To become the best brother, father, son, doctor,
and of course, friend,
You've always been there for me - my best man.
And chances are:
Life just wouldn't be the same . . .
If you and I didn't share the same last name.

In October of 1994 Jerome Wiesner died. He had headed MIT, and had been a Science Advisor to both Presidents Kennedy and Eisenhower. Anthony Lewis, a NY Times editorialist, wrote a piece about Dr. Wiesner so beautiful that it drastically changed my life and how I think about my place in our beautiful country. Mr. Lewis called Dr. Wiesner a "public citizen", a person who through acts no matter how small or large, participates in every possible aspect of tending the well-being of his community and his country.

For many years I struggled with the concept of how to be a good citizen, how to support my country, and be a productive contributing member of this society. It seemed that a person needed to be an expert in just about everything to participate in anything, and this was the monumental stumbling block in my logic. Mr. Lewis' beautiful piece brought home to me that doing the best you can with what you have and at any given time is the most anyone can expect. The point is, you have to do. Take 5 minutes to write a letter to your congressfolx, saying "drive through deliveries stink". It doesn't have to be long, fancy, or impeccably researched. Just delivered. Attend monthly town meetings. Spend an hour a week with a confined neighbor. Vote. Keep the sidewalk in front of your apartment clean. So many things, great and small add up to a caring community and a great country.

Irwin Shaw wrote a poignant story of a man who took his son to report for active service in World War II. The man was an accountant, and had enjoyed a fairly orderly and ordinary life with his family. In seeing his son off to the airport, though, he realized that he spent too much of his life focused on his immediate surroundings, and that he was now sending his son off to fight in a war that he had done nothing to prevent. I don't want to have regrets of that kind, so I make time to participate in what I can, trusting that the running average of all of our best efforts will yield a true and stronger country for future generations of Americans.

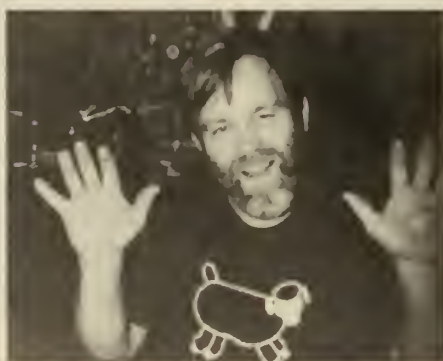

So, I hope I have helped perpetuate Dr. Wiesner's life philosophy of good citizenry as a noble goal and a responsibility, and leave you with the thought

What have you done for your country lately?

Elsa -
It was a privilege to be your faithful loving companion for so many beautiful years.

WHERE THE SIDEWALK ENDS

There is a place where the sidewalk ends
And before the street begins,
And there the grass grows soft and white,
And there the sun burns crimson bright,
And there the moon-bird rests from his flight
To cool in the peppermint wind.

Let us leave this place where the smoke blows black
And the dark street winds and bends.
Past the pits where the asphalt flowers grow
We shall walk with a walk that is measured and slow,
And watch where the chalk-white arrows go
To the place where the sidewalk ends.

Yes we'll walk with a walk that is measured and slow,
And we'll go where the chalk-white arrows go,
For the children, they mark, and the children, they know
The place where the sidewalk ends.

...There, rank oer rank that climbed the crystal air
In horizontal majesty, were crossed
The multitudinous shafts, or ranged afar
Till in the blue perspective they were lost,
And arches linked with arches stretched along
Like to the mystic measures of an antique song.

An antique song whose half-discovered sense
Seems to spring forth from depths, as yet, unknown
And fills the heart with wonder & suspense
Until to thrilling rapture it is grown;
Breathless we listen to each wandering strain
And when the numbers cease we listen still again.

Above the columned pile sublimely rose
A Dome stupendous, like the moon it shone
When first upon the orient sky she glows
And moves along the Ocean's verge alone;
And yet beyond, above, another sphere
And yet another, vaster, dimly did appear...

Philadelphia

Our faculty in Philadelphia were particularly affected by the turmoil at MCP Hahnemann School of Medicine and throughout the system during our time here. We thank them profusely for their professionalism in maintaining excellence in teaching in spite of the pressures and uncertainties they faced for themselves. We will no doubt encounter similar stressors in our professional lives (though unlikely as severe) and because of the examples they set we are far better equipped to deal with these stressors.

James Baggott, Ph.D.

Dr. Baggott was a native of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, earning his B.S. in Chemistry cum laude at Marquette University in 1962, and his Ph.D. in Physiologic Chemistry at Johns Hopkins in 1966. After a Public Health Service post-doctoral fellowship, he joined the faculty at Hahnemann University in 1968, and held positions too numerous and varied to recount. As impressive as these unlisted accomplishments are, his major successes – the things he truly valued – are not listed in his Curriculum Vitae. Dr. Baggott was a devoted father to his eight children, and a passionate gardener and naturalist.

Dr. Baggott's profession is better described as one of teaching than of biochemistry. His incessant search for better ways to help students learn is one of the many traits that made his teaching so engaging. He strived for "kinetic delivery" of lectures, believing that learning should be a fun and enjoyable experience. He loved obscure facts that bridged scientific disciplines for us, as well as helping to illustrate a point he wished to make. One of his greatest accomplishments was his development of an as-yet unsurpassed Integrated Biochemistry Learning System (IBLS).

Dr. Baggott's energy, enthusiasm, and passion for teaching will be sorely missed by colleagues, students, and the academic community at large.

Andrew Beasley, Sc.D.

Dr. Beasley's name evoked mystery-like sentiments for many of us in the Class of 2000. After 39 years at our school, he had nearly become an institution himself. In 1963 - before most of our class was born or our parents even married - he assumed his role as Associate Dean of Admissions, where he remained for 23 years. He interviewed many of us, and several of our parents as well.

Dr. Beasley began as an instructor in Anatomy, and held positions up to and including Administrator and Acting Department Chair. He was a six-time Golden Apple Award winner, and also received the Lindback Foundation award for Distinguished Teaching. However, the school and our class will remember him most for his role as Associate Dean of Admissions. He was known for advocating the school's philosophies of recruiting underrepresented, humanistic and non-traditional applicants. He retired in March of 1997 and, sadly, died several months later. His work shaped our class and our school, and his ideals will continue to be deeply ingrained in the admissions philosophy.

Angelo Pinto, Ph.D.

"Angelo", as he preferred to be called, was a professor whose respect for and faith in us was virtually palpable. He treated us not like subordinates, but as future and respected colleagues and as people from whom he wished to learn. Though we were blessed with a fantastic and dedicated faculty, there were few who were as visible as he. For Angelo, a walk down the hallway could easily be a half-hour endeavor. He could seldom go from one end of the hall to the other without being stopped by at least one student for questions, or advice, or just a social chat. As one student pointed out, he was truly a graceful and gracious person, for no matter how pressed he was for time, he had a knack for making you feel like the most important person in his world right then.

Angelo's personal magnetism was well matched by his teaching ability. For nearly a decade, Angelo received a Golden Apple Award annually, some years two awards. Even after his death, he received a tremendous number of votes for the Golden Apple. His lectures were not to be missed, his synopses of often confusing topics cherished.

Angelo's dedication to us and to our school went far beyond what meets the eye. He was Assistant Director of the Program for Integrated Learning, and Assistant Professor, Educational Coordinator and Laboratory Coordinator for the Department of Microbiology and Immunology. He was a reviewer for three immunology journals, and at the time of his death was developing a handbook of microbiology geared toward pre-clinical medical studies. It is quite telling that his academic interests lay more with improving excellence in teaching than in pursuing basic research. Almost every year for the last decade, he attended conferences and published articles, both of which addressed improving teaching skills of medical student educators. Angelo was a vital part of the effort to preserve our school during the bankruptcy.

Two years after his sudden death at age 42, his picture remains on many office walls at school. His memory will undoubtedly invigorate the hearts of the graduates of 2000, the faculty we leave behind, and the families he nurtured.

Joel J. Roslyn, M.D.

"Respected surgeon, incredible teacher, consummate academic, able administrator, loving husband, devoted father" . . . These words are how people describe Dr. Joel Roslyn, who passed away in July 1999 of melanoma at the age of 48. After 15 years at UCLA, Dr. Roslyn became Chairman of Surgery at MCP, and later, Chairman of the combined surgery departments of Hahnemann and MCP. During his seven years as Chair, Dr. Roslyn built a first-rate department that excelled in clinical care, education and research.

Although Dr. Roslyn was deeply concerned about and interested in the academic achievements of his students, his dedication to his department and to his patients was superceded only by his cardinal rule, family first. He was a devoted husband and father to his four sons who cherished his time with family. He attended as many of his sons' sporting events that he possibly could, also making time to coach little league baseball and lacrosse. He could often be found playing one of his favorite sports, basketball, with his boys.

When our school went bankrupt, Dr. Roslyn's greatest concern was for our future. He fought vigorously to save our school, turning down several impressive job offers to stay and help us. He helped form the Committee for The University, and led the lobby responsible for continuity of our student loans. There are such a multitude of functions he performed on our behalf during the bankruptcy, that it would be impracticable to list them here.

We would honor him to continue his life philosophies of devotion to family, of actively mentoring our future colleagues, and of adhering tenaciously to and fighting for the things that enrich our lives and lives of our patients and loved ones.

Suzanne Zarro, M.D.

Dr. Zarro exemplifies the non-traditional students of MCP Hahnemann in that she enrolled in Hahnemann's School of Medicine only after graduating from Ursinus College, marrying and having children. After graduating in 1978 and doing her residency in Internal Medicine, she joined the faculty as an Assistant Professor of Neurobiology and Anatomy. She held appointments in both the Department of Pathology and Laboratory Medicine and the Department of Biological Sciences.

We were fortunate to have "Dr. Sue" as our advocate for as long as we did. She had a long history of excellence in teaching, for which she received four Golden Apple Awards, a Lindback Foundation Award for Distinguished Teaching, and a Trustees Award for Teaching Excellence. The graduates probably knew her best in her role as Associate Dean of Student Affairs.

Dr. Zarro's dedication to our school and to her profession, and her personal drive and determination were always known to those immediately around her. These personal qualities became especially evident, however, after a devastating accident in 1996, when she was broad-sided leaving a Hahnemann Hospital parking lot. Her injuries prevented her from returning to her favored role as a pre-clinical instructor, but she maintained her student contact by acting as an advisor in a number of capacities, including faculty advisor to students. Dr. Landau described her style succinctly when he wrote, "When I (and I suspect others as well) ask her for counsel, I receive it, stripped of sentimentality, spare of words, but right to the point and in terms that I need to hear and which I cannot ignore."

Dr. Zarro's last appointment at MCP Hahnemann School of Medicine was to the position of Dean of Admissions, which she held until her death in 1998. She admitted our Class of 2002. We will miss her tremendously, and we are far better for having known her.

Suzanne Zarro, M.D.

The faculty we lost all share the common traits of devotion both to us and to their professions. They were true mentors who encouraged both professional and personal growth. In the long run, they provided us with role models to which we may aspire, and more immediately, provided inspiration, humor, encouragement, and listening ears for the grittier times we'd all just as soon forget. Our professional demeanor and approach to patient care – total and humanistic patient care – is decidedly shaped for the better by these five people. Our greatest legacy to them will be the expression of their passions and ideals throughout our personal and professional lives.

To their families we extend our sorrow for your loss, and our thanks for sharing your loved one with us. We hope that our legacy to them will bring warmth and comfort to you as well as to our patients and their families.

"Nor does it matter at all to the dead whether they receive justice at the hands of succeeding generations. But to the living, to do justice, however belatedly, should matter."

- Garrett Mattingly, The Armada

The Class of 2000 would like to extend its appreciation to all of our faculty and staff at MCP Hahnemann, whose dedication and support have helped us to reach this juncture in our lives.

Dear Sam -
Your Dad always said
"You'll be a heck of a doctor"
I'm sure he's smiling
down on you now.
BE HAPPY!

I remember when you were just 6 years old and you "invented" a cure for the common cold. You gave it to your classmates with loving care, saying "watch out germs - you'd better beware!" Now you stand with your stethoscope, your main goal - "to give the sick hope". Sam, we are so proud of you, we know you'll succeed in all you do.

Medical practice is not knitting and weaving and the labor of the hands, but it must be inspired with soul and be filled with understanding and equipped with the gift of keen observation; these together with accurate scientific knowledge are the indispensable requisites for proficient medical practice.

Fulfillment

Take control of your life,
Love yourself, be proud.
So unpredictable,
Daring, and loud.

Like an eagle;
Roam free and at will.
With love and happiness
Your life fulfill.

Soar to new heights.
Reach for the sky.
There's no river too wide,
Nor mountain too high.

Say you can do it
And you will succeed.
Self-confidence is important.
It's all that you need.

Accept no limits.
The human mind has none.
Think for yourself
And follow no one.

Live every day like
It may be your last.
Don't worry about yesterday.
That's in the past.

But don't jeopardize the future
you live to uncover.
There's so much out there
You've yet to discover!

We love you Kenny!

We are very proud of you. Not just for what you've accomplished, but for the person you are. We are very lucky to have you in our lives.

Love, Ammi, Thathi, Robert, Dade, & Niri

No, Jill, it's the patient who is supposed to stick out her tongue.

Everyone in the Render and O'Hern families is enormously proud of you, our first Doctor. Your spirit, perserverance, and accomplishments are fabulous (and so was your "do" at age 16)!

Dear David,

Congratulations on the commencement of your medical profession. We applaud your accomplishment and know you will use your skills and knowledge to benefit others. We are proud of you and we love you dearly.

When challenges never relented and difficulties always compounded

When toughness has redefined and obstacles infinitely lied

You shrugged off all that is daunting and stared in the face of the impossible

Sister, Daughter, and now, DOCTOR Yussra
It is finally your time to smile

CONGRATULATIONS!

Congratulations Todd!

Now is a time for you to celebrate...the accomplishment of a dream you have worked so hard to realize. You have shown so many people how special you are.

Now is the time to begin to pursue the next path, to reach out for the next star, and to achieve the things that are so important to you.

Always keep your dream alive, and keep them coming true.

DANIELLE

Always remember!!
The purpose of your education was to provide you with an opportunity to learn how best YOU may serve the world.

We knew, after all the clocks you took apart to see how they worked, that you were destined for great things. We are all so very proud of you and thank GOD for what He has done in your life. Always keep Him next to you.

We love you "DANGEROUS",

Impressions of the Holocaust

When the stars are bright and shining clear for everyone to see
I think about the stars that are only in our minds.
At times they flicker and blink, at other times they shine bright.
Oh the pain when they shine bright, the pain of remembering
when they too shone bright for the world
Now they shine only in our minds.

10 Reasons Why We Are Glad Eric Went To Medical School

1. Otherwise, he would still be working at Alpha Scientific and Dave would never get anything done in between Eric's demands to go biking, skiing and golfing. -Dave & Maren
2. He perfected his clam-shell-extraction skills, which he then exercised on Lori's toenail (which will never be the same again). -Charles & Lori
3. Now we have someone to explain the gastro-colic reflex to us (and you know we were wondering). -Tom & Karen
4. It never hurts to have a ski medic on board during family ski vacations. -Carol & Jim
5. He was able to save Killian with the doggie Heimlich maneuver (and those free Retin-A samples haven't been too shabby either). -Clary
6. "Now you really have got it up here" (pointing to head). -Jesse
7. Most thorough prostate exam around. -Andy & Nancy
8. He scored us that cool Viagra pen to flash around the office. -Natalie & Matt
9. Now we know what Family "Practice" really means! -Mom & Skip
10. Most of all, Eric, we love you and we're proud of you!
-From all of us

Ever since you were five,
You have never waived in your drive.

THE OATH OF HIPPOCRATES

I SOLEMNLY SWEAR OR AFFIRM, BY WHATEVER I HOLD MOST SACRED:

THAT I WILL BE LOYAL TO THE PROFESSION OF MEDICINE AND JUST AND GENEROUS TO ITS MEMBERS;

THAT I WILL LEAD MY LIFE AND PRACTICE MY ART IN UPRIGHTNESS AND IN HONOR;

THAT INTO WHATSOEVER HOUSE I SHALL ENTER, IT SHALL BE FOR THE GOOD OF THE SICK TO THE UTMOST OF MY POWER, HOLDING MYSELF FAR ALOOF FROM WRONG, FROM CORRUPTION, FROM THE TEMPTING OF OTHERS TO VICE;

THAT I WILL EXERCISE MY ART SOLELY FOR THE BENEFIT OF MY PATIENTS, AND WILL GIVE NO DRUG, OR PERFORM NO OPERATION, FOR A CRIMINAL PURPOSE, EVEN IF SOLICITED, FAR LESS SUGGEST IT;

THAT WHATSOEVER I SHALL SEE OR HEAR OF THE LIVES OF PATIENTS WHICH IS NOT FITTING TO BE SPOKEN, I WILL KEEP INVIOLEABLY SECRET.

THESE THINGS I DO SWEAR OR AFFIRM.
